JULY, 1914. No. 3. MEDFORD BELLS. By Moses W. Mann. Read before the Medford Historical Society, April 20, 1914. THE bells of a town or city possess an interest to many youths, not outgrown in later years. Whether the bells call to school or factory, college hall or church, whether the alarm of danger, wedding chimes or the solemn knell for the dead, they bring a message, reminding of duty or business, pleasure or sorrow. One of the pleasantest recollections of the town where my boyhood was spent...
